

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention discloses a camera including a magnetic recording unit for recording information on the magnetic recording portion of a film, a timepiece unit for counting a date, and a control unit for controlling and causing the magnetic recording unit to record first image taking date information containing last two digits of a dominical year and second image taking date information containing four digits of the dominical year on the magnetic recording portion of the photographic film on the basis of the output from the timepiece unit, and an apparatus for printing the first image taking date information containing the last two digits of the dominical year, which recorded on the magnetic recording portion of the film, as a four digits dominical year.